MoSCoW Prioritization

Must have

- A functional product that is ready for deployment.
- Comprehensive system documentation that is easily comprehensible to the stakeholder.
- A system that allows for better communication between employees.
- The system should be able to send orders from the order website to the register in the shop to the kitchen.
- Customers should be able to place their order on the website
- Customers should be able to pick up their orders at the shop

Should have

- A finished product that is accessible and comprehensible to all intended audiences, ensuring its user-friendliness for everyone.
- Customers should be able to pay via the website

Could have

- A highly advanced and visually appealing user interface.
- Orders should be able to get delivered to the customer.

Will not have

- Useless functionalities that require additional time to be incorporated into the prototype.
- There will be no mobile versions of any of the application